

Bio

Edward L. McQueen

Edward McQueen is a native of Conway, SC and graduate of Whittemore High School. He attended the University of The District of Columbia in Washington, DC and received a Bachelor's Degree in Civil Engineering in 1973. While employed at the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) as a Civil Engineer, Edward was asked to join USAir Airways as a Project Engineer designing and administering the development of airport terminals in 1978. While employed at USAir Edward received a Master's of Business Administration (MBA) in Finance from Marymount University of Virginia. After working for a number of years at USAir, he was asked to return to FAA as an Environmental Engineer. He retired from the FAA in December 2012.

Edward has been the publisher of the Whittemore Magazine, now the Whittemore Community Magazine (WCM), for the past 19 years. The WCM is disseminated all across the United States and abroad. Before returning to Conway to retire, Edward and his wife, Jo Ella envisioned the idea of a radio broadcast to address educational, political, economic, social and health issues. They put their thoughts into action and the WCM Hour of Power Talk Radio became a reality about seven years ago. Three years ago, the broadcast was further enhanced with the addition of April Garner as co-host. This broadcast provides a wealth of information to empower the listening audience. In addition, guests from the state and local level are interviewed on the program each week.
